

View from the Thames path looking towards Beale Park are very limited and obscured by trees on the East side of the Thames. The trees in the foreground are at the West side of the field, another tree row lower down are by the Thames, and on the other side of the river it's possible to make out the two groups of poplars which are useful to identify the proposed location.

No buildings at Beale Park can be seen from the Thames Path.